BOAT SHOW GRANTS SUPPORT LOCAL NONPROFITS' MARINE EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

PBIBS Gives Back Program celebrates $1 million in donations in two years.

By Rob Lucarelli

Palm Beach International Boat Show Gives Back, the Palm Beach International Boat Show's official grant program, awarded $500,000 across 29 local nonprofit organizations for the program's second year, bringing the two-year total to $1 million.

A collaboration between the Marine Industries Association of Palm Beach County (MIAPBC), the owner of the Palm Beach International Boat Show (PBIBS), and Informa, the show's producer, Palm Beach International Boat Show Gives Back supports environmental and marine education programs, as well as waterfront projects in Palm Beach County that serve residents and visitors. This includes educational activities, curriculum development, field trips, outreach, in-house programs, and cultural events.

"Through Palm Beach International Boat Show Gives Back, we're fostering marine education and environmental stewardship by supporting the nonprofits that make a difference in our community," said Alyssa Freeman, executive director of the MIAPBC. "This grant strengthens our commitment to preserving the environment, supporting programs that educate future generations, and, ultimately, grow and support our marine industry."

Proceeds from the annual Palm Beach International Boat Show, including ticket sales, optional add-on donations, and other boat show-related endeavors, help fund Palm Beach International Boat Show Gives Back. PBIBS has a 44-year history of major economic impact on the region. Both residents and visitors to South Florida consider it one of a handful of must-attend, major boating events in the world.

"The Palm Beach International Boat Show not only bolsters the economy but also supports philanthropic efforts that strengthen and sustain the local community, demonstrating how prosperity and generosity go hand in hand," said Rena Blades, director of community and government affairs for the boat show.

"We encourage visitors to add donations to their Palm Beach International Boat Show ticket purchases," said Blades. "We hope to double the dollar amount in grants we distribute to help fund many more impactful marine educational opportunities throughout Palm Beach County."

Here are just a few examples of community programs that will benefit from the support of the Palm Beach International Boat Show Gives Back program in 2025.

Expanding Coral Conservation in Palm Beach County

Leneita Fix has a nursery where she cares for more than 17,000 babies – coral babies. As the executive director and CEO of The Reef Institute, she is looking forward to cradling more than 500,000 coral babies after the organization completes its move to a location over seven times larger than its current digs in the Northwood neighborhood of West Palm Beach.

"We are moving from a 3,000-square-foot storefront to a 23,000-square-foot warehouse space," said Fix. "The generous grant we've received from the Palm Beach International Boat Show Gives Back program is helping us complete the move by July. We're honored that they're willing to back our plans."

Simply put, The Reef Institute's vision is to save the ocean through the collaborative restoration of reef-building coral. A marine animal, coral is not only important to ocean habitat and the marine species that live in and around them, but also plays an important role in Florida's economy.

The Reef Institute focuses on biobanking corals on land in large aquariums. Getting the corals to reproduce is the next goal. Successfully produced larvae live in cradle aquariums that mimic the environment of the Florida ocean. After eight or nine months, the Institute moves juvenile corals into regular system aquariums. Next, the corals are ready for outplanting, where they are restored to the ocean to help rebuild vital reef ecosystems.

"We are dedicated to rebuilding the reef, beginning in Palm Beach County, extending throughout Florida, and collaborating across the Caribbean," said Fix.

Inspiring Young Women to Choose Maritime Education and Careers

The Girl Scouts of Southeast Florida serves approximately 7,000 girls, including more than 2,200 in Palm Beach County. Funding from Palm Beach International Boat Show Gives Back will continue to enhance and expand the Girl Scouts' programming in Palm Beach County, focusing on maritime education and careers, as well as environmental stewardship. Kathy Benson, grants manager for the Girl Scouts of Southeast Florida, notes that these programs align seamlessly with the organization's Outdoor Pillar, one of four pillars that form the Girl Scout Leadership Experience.

"Because the ocean is a big part of how we live in Palm Beach County, we wish to expose girls to what's out there," said Benson. "Through maritime education, our hope is to inspire girls' passion for the environment, and to seriously consider careers in the region's thriving maritime industry."

Specifically, Girl Scouts at Sea is an innovative program that introduces girls to diverse career opportunities within the industry – from hospitality to marine biology and engineering. Funding this year will expand the program to include an immersive experience for sixth through 12th-grade girls with professionals from Margaritaville Cruise Lines.

A collaboration with The Reef Institute has girls getting more granular. "They'll learn about coral reef conservation," said Benson. "They'll have the chance to contribute to vital environmental research and learn about the importance of reef ecosystems to the environment."

Benson added that the grant is poised to make a significant impact on the lives of Girl Scouts in Palm Beach County. "This grant will help us inspire a generation of young women who are informed and engaged and contribute positively to their communities and the world at large."

Ballet Palm Beach Brings Book About Sea Turtles to Life

Colleen Smith, Ballet Palm Beach's founding artistic and executive director, believes performances in nontraditional locations are powerful. "We've danced in downtown West Palm, in subway stations, all kinds of places," said Smith. "It's a great way to bring art directly to people going about their day. People stop and pay attention to dancers. They're intrigued by the movement."

With this in mind, Smith decided to create an original piece that will bring attention to the critical need for education around saving and protecting sea turtles. The work will be based on the children's book, I'll Follow the Moon, by Stephanie Lisa Tara, which chronicles a baby sea turtle's journey from its hatching to its first swim out to sea. Performances will take place in waterfront locations.

"My grandchildren love to read, so children's books are on my radar," said Smith.

In addition to shining a light on sea turtles, Smith said the piece will also celebrate the beautiful natural resource we have in our ocean waterfront. "We're planning waterfront performances for the fall of 2025 when season is underway and downtown West Palm is bustling with activity."

"I'm excited to bring this piece to life, and grateful for the support of the grant."

Cultivating Future Scientists, Engineers

Connections Education Center of the Palm Beaches, Inc. is a West Palm Beach-based nonprofit that delivers high-quality, specialized instruction to students with autism in Palm Beach County.

The organization will use its grant from the Palm Beach International Boat Show Gives Back program to fund Full STEAM Ahead, a community-based instruction initiative to foster students' interest in environmental and water-based activities. "STEAM stands for science, technology, engineering, art, and math," said Debra Johnson, executive director of Connections Education Center of the Palm Beaches. "About 125 students will have access to research-based and community-based, hands-on instruction."

In addition to local excursions to Loggerhead Marinelife Center and Manatee Lagoon, funding will help elementary and high school-aged students experience animal-based therapy programs offered by Island Dolphin Care in Key Largo. "They will literally be swimming with the dolphins, as well as learning the value of marine animals and their environment," said Johnson. As a Title 1 school, 83 percent of Connections Education Center's students' families live below the poverty line. "These students wouldn't normally have this kind of experience. That's why we're extremely thrilled and grateful to receive this grant."

"We've never done a community-based, science-themed program before. Students with autism typically excel at scientific careers because they tend to be very rules based, hands-on, and logical," notes Johnson. "Our goal is to get the students involved as young as possible. Who knows, we could be producing some future scientists or engineers."

"We encourage visitors to add donations to their Palm Beach International Boat Show ticket purchases," said Blades. "We hope to double the dollar amount in grants we distribute to help fund many more impactful marine educational opportunities throughout Palm Beach County."
